SAMUEL ROSECRANZ DOTY: AN EARLY ANN ARBOR MUSICIAN, BUSINESSMAN, FARMER, AND COMMUNITY LEADER

By Nancy H. Krohn and Marty Carr

It was the unique brief story of Samuel Rosecranz Doty and his fife that lead to author Nancy Krohn's interest in researching and writing an article about him. Nancy was the long-time editor of Capers and regularly proposed that she intended to write an article about Mr. Doty for Capers. Unfortunately, Nancy never completed her desired story but her notes and copies of newspaper clippings about Samuel Doty were donated to the Genealogical Society of Washtenaw County. Fellow GSWC member Marty Carr graciously agreed to sift through the material and to compose an article. She also did additional genealogical research on Samuel, his first wife Almira, his second wife Hannah and their children to add to the article. It is with appreciation to Marty and to honor Nancy that this article is now published.

In 1838 a Washtenaw Guards unit was formed in Ann Arbor. Named as its first captain was E. S. Cobb. One of the first things Captain Cobb did was to order a fife for the new unit's band. Competition for the fife was keen among the men. Ultimately, Captain Cobb gave it to Samuel Doty, telling him to keep the fife until he called for it. Sadly, Captain Cobb was never able to call for the fife. He died in a devastating fire aboard the paddle-wheel steamer, Erie, in the summer of 1841. The fire which flashed over the entire ship in a matter of minutes was caused by improperly stored paint, varnish, and turpentine. According to the August 12, 1841 edition of the Erie Gazette, 242 people died in the fire and its aftermath.

Samuel kept the fife, treasured it and played it at multiple ceremonies and political meetings. Fife and drum corps were extremely popular in the years surrounding both the Revolutionary and Civil wars. Samuel proudly played his fife for about twenty-five years at most 4th of July celebrations. Memorial commemorations for two presidents also found Samuel playing his fife—in 1841 for William Henry Harrison in Ypsilanti and in 1850 for Zachary Taylor in Ann Arbor.[1]

Samuel Rosecranz Doty was born December 18, 1802 in Rensselaerville, Albany County, New York,[2] the son of William Doty and Sarah Rosekrans.[3] As a young man Samuel migrated west in New York—first to Chenango County and then to Niagara County. While in Niagara County, Samuel met and married Almira Kingsbury in 1828.[4] She was the daughter of Isaac Kingsbury and Polly Judson. Almira died in 1833 in Royalton, Niagara County.[5] There were no children from this marriage. From Niagara County, Samuel settled briefly in Ohio where he married Almira's older sister, Hannah Lawrence Kingsbury in Lorain County, Ohio,[6] west of Cleveland.

From Ohio, Samuel moved to Washtenaw County, Michigan in 1836.[7] Pittsfield Township was his home for two years.[8] In 1838 he bought a farm in Ann Arbor Township, section 30.[9] This would be Samuel's home for most of the rest of his life. His land bordered what became Dexter Road in the western part of the township. His family fondly named their home Heart's Content.[10]Shortly after settling in Washtenaw County, Samuel established a successful brick and tile manufacturing business, which would continue for more than thirty-five years.[11] The 1856 and 1864 atlas maps show Samuel's brick and tile business merely labeled "Brick Yard," with no actual business name given. It was located on the north side of Dexter Road and is now the home of an apartment complex, behind [east of] Knight's Steakhouse. In the 1864 atlas map, it shows Samuel owns a third parcel of land to the east of his original two. Present day, in that same vicinity, there is a street running north off Dexter Road named Doty Street. It seems likely that the street is named for Samuel or his family.

In addition to operating his brick and tile business, Samuel was also a farmer[12] [13] and appears on the 1850 census business schedule with income from a shoe and boot business. His interests and activities extended to civic participation as well. Among his contributions were:

1837 Elected Commissioner of Highways, Ann Arbor Township[14]
1837 Signed an abolition petition[15]
1838 Attended as a delegate a temperance convention[16]
1842 Supplied and paid for brick at the jail[17]
1861 Volunteered for Ann Arbor Home Guard (or minute men, for men ages 45 and up during the Civil War)[18]
1861–63 Served as collector and treasurer for Ann Arbor Township[19]

He attended multiple times as a delegate to county and state Whig conventions.[20] When the Republican Party was formed from the Whigs, he became a supporter of that party.[21]

Physically, Samuel was tall and strong.[22] As a young man he was known to be a speedy runner.[23] His interests included reading, nature, and current events.[24] He was friendly, kind, charitable, and had a sense of humor.[25] It appears his wife Hannah Kingsbury Doty (born December 7, 1806 in Seneca Co., New York[26] and died September 6, 1882 in Ann Arbor[27]) was of similar character for included in her obituary are the following words: "While her life was one of devotion to her family, her hands were never empty nor idle for the needy or unfortunate. Her intellect was of a high order and her nature and character rare and beautiful."[28] Thus it should not be surprising that the education of their children was a high priority.[29] Their son received a university education. Since that was not allowed for girls at the time, Samuel and Hannah's daughters were sent to private schools and received tutoring for advanced studies.[30]

The last two years of Samuel's life were difficult. He had lost his wife, his health was declining and, gradually, he became seriously ill. Through all of this, he still had his fife. His plan was to bequeath it to the Washtenaw County Pioneer Society.[31] In a devastating turn of events, Samuel's long-time home burned to the ground in March 1883.[32] Samuel was ill and his rescue was difficult. All of the home contents, including his fife, were lost.[33] At the time of the fire, Samuel had owned his cherished fife for 45 years. He died February 27, 1884 at the age of 81.[34] [35] Samuel, his wife, and three of their children are buried in Ann Arbor's Forest Hill Cemetery.[36]

The account of Samuel Doty and his fife has passed into Ann Arbor history, but the examples set by Samuel and Hannah toward the community and the importance of education has left another important legacy in the form of their five children. All received quality educations—including their daughters—and each continued, in different ways, their parents' commitment to community service and love of the arts.

The Five Children of Samuel Rosecranz Doty and Hannah Lawrence Kingsbury

Duane Doty was born in Amherst, Lorain County, Ohio on September 13, 1835.[37] He was raised in Ann Arbor and attended the University of Michigan from which he graduated in 1856 with a degree in classical studies.[38] In 1860 he was living with his parents and siblings in Ann Arbor and teaching school.[39] During the Civil War, Duane served as a 1st Lieutenant and adjutant in the 7th Michigan Cavalry from October 1862 until July 1863 when he resigned.[40] His marriage to Margaretta Richards of Ann Arbor occurred on August 10, 1864.[41] The marriage record states that Duane was a resident of Detroit.[42] Duane became superintendent of the Detroit Public Schools in 1865 and served in that position for ten years.[43] Later a school building was named for him[44] and in 2011 it was listed on the National Register of Historic Places. In 1875 Duane was named assistant superintendent of the Chicago Public Schools.[45] The next year he was elevated to superintendent.[46] His tenure lasted four years, until 1880, when he was unexpectedly replaced.[47] In the early 1880s George Pullman was planning a model community for the workers at his railroad car company, Pullman Palace Car Company.[48] Duane Doty became interested in this concept[49] and was hired by Pullman to help survey and lay out his town.[50] It would be on the south side of Chicago. There were to be brick row houses for rent that had indoor plumbing, gas, sewers, daily trash collection, a marketplace, school, library, park, athletic grounds, and more.[51] [52] In exchange there were behavioral standards the workers were expected to meet.[53] Duane became the first town manager of Pullman, first editor of the Pullman Press, and first secretary of the endowment fund of the Pullman Free School of Manual Training.[54] The depression of 1893 caused a reduced demand for Pullman's railroad cars. He laid off many workers and reduced the salary of others. However, he did not reduce rent on the row houses. Employees protested which led to a strike lasting two months in 1894.[55] This was the beginning of a downturn for the town of Pullman. Eventually the city of Chicago annexed it.[56] Duane died November 17, 1902 at his home in Pullman from complications following surgery.[57] An obituary states, "Mr.

Helen Ann Doty was born July 17, 1836 in Pittsfield, Washtenaw County, Michigan.[59] She married Henry E. Compton of Ypsilanti, a merchant, on March 14, 1863.[60] Their son, Samuel Lawrence Compton, was born December 15, 1863. Sadly, he died at the age of 19 months on July 12, 1865.[61] By 1880 Helen and Henry were divorced.[62] It is possible that the Ellon [sic] Compton living alone in Detroit in 1870 is Helen Ann.[63] Her brother, Duane, was living in Detroit at that time. At some point Helen relocated to Chicago where Duane had moved. She was involved in social activities in Chicago. In 1883 she was the editor of a high school newspaper.[64] The Young Fortnightly was a women's literary group that Helen co-founded in 1890.[65] The next approximately twenty years of her life are unknown. When Helen was 75 years old, she married in London, England, a 42-year-old man whom she had known about twelve years. John Spencer Turner needed to be married to inherit his father's wealth.[66] [67] Helen signed a prenuptial agreement that if John died first, she would not inherit his money. John had resided in Rome, Italy, for many years and that is where they lived. Helen died two months after their marriage on September 24, 1912 in Rome, Italy due to a brain hemorrhage.[68]

Clara Doty was born in Ann Arbor on December 22, 1838.[69] Even at an early age, her writing ability attracted attention. A poem she wrote was published when she was nine years old.[70] On September 2, 1869 she married Morgan Bates Jr.,[71] a newspaper man and also an author. Early in their marriage they lived in Traverse City, Michigan,[72] Morgan's hometown. Later they moved to Detroit where Clara's brother lived[73] and where Clara worked as a newspaper editor.[74] In 1877, Morgan and Clara settled in Chicago[75] where her brother was now living. Clara continued writing. She became very well-known for her poems and stories for children. Her best-known works were, Aesop's Fables in Verse, Child

Lore, Classics of Babyland, and Heart's Content[76] named after her childhood home. For the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago Clara introduced the idea and worked two years developing a children's library in the Women's Building.[77] She attended the library as a hostess during the fair.[78] Clara's health was fragile during the last several years of her life and she was in considerable pain.[79] She died on October 14, 1895 at the age of 56.[80] She is buried in the Doty family plot in Forest Hill Cemetery, Ann Arbor.[81] "To know her was to admire and love her, and in her death the literature of the West, and especially of Chicago, has suffered an irreparable loss."[82]

Caroline Eliza Doty was born August 22, 1839 in Ann Arbor.[83] Caroline remained single and her vocation was that of a schoolteacher.[84] However, as her parents' health declined, she stayed home and cared for them, returning to teaching after their deaths in 1882 and 1884.[85] By 1885 she was living in Chicago.[86] Caroline died May 6, 1898 at her brother's home in Pullman, Illinois, following a two-week illness with pneumonia.[87] She is buried in the Doty family plot in Forest Hill Cemetery.[88]

Charlotte Kingsbury Doty, born June 1, 1841,[89] was the artist of the Doty family. She was the illustrator for some of her sister, Clara's, publications.[90] She created portraits of her father and of her mother.[91] On August 9, 1866 Charlotte married Homer Phelps Finley,[92] a merchant selling shoes and boots, and later, cemetery monuments.[93] They had one daughter, Flora Charlotte.[94] For many years they lived at 712 Ingalls Street in Ann Arbor, which is where Charlotte died on November 8, 1917.[95]

REV. FRIEDRICH SCHMID'S BAPTISMAL RECORDS, 1833–1874, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN
(Part Twenty-Eight)

Translated & transcribed by Rob and Cyndy Steward, 2021

The original records of Rev. Friedrich Schmid are currently housed and may be accessed in The Michigan Historical Collections, Bentley Historical Library, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Please note that the handwriting of Rev. Schmid is not easily deciphered, in part due to his penmanship. The records contain entries written in old German script and some using English script. In addition, the pages in his records are not numbered. It is our understanding that he kept notes as he traveled and then entered them into his record books when he returned home. This may explain that while the records are fairly complete there are some gaps or omissions.

We have maintained the spelling Rev. Schmid used in the case of names. Items enclosed in parentheses are usually comments or notes of the translators or indicate alternate spellings. The term "geb." in relation to a female name, refers to "born as" or maiden name. A "+" at the beginning or end of a line indicates the person is deceased. "Unehl." indicates that the parents were not married to each other at the time of the baptism.

Rev. Schmid's Baptismal Records are in column format as follows:
(Left hand pages – a.) "Chronological Number" of the child for that particular year; Name of Child; Parents Names; Place; Birth Date.
(Right hand pages – b.) Baptismal Date and Place; Sponsors Names (sometimes marital status or relationship of the sponsors are listed).
Columns with no entry or missing information are indicated by three hyphens (---).
